Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 03 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Scattered showers overnight and into tomorrow. Frost in places.

This Evening and Tonight:
Cloudy for most with scattered showers possible throughout, possibly wintry over hills. Showers will ease during the early hours. Risk of frost formation, and an occasional icy patch, under any clear spells. Remaining breezy and feeling cold. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Monday:
After a cloudy morning, we will see more clear spells as the day goes on, but scattered showers are possible throughout, possibly wintry over hills. Feeling cold and becoming windy. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Rather cloudy on Tuesday, with a few wintry showers possible. Drier on Wednesday with a few bright spells. Rain pushing south-eastwards on Thursday. Staying cold throughout, with overnight frost.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.